ROBBIE P. DOWNS GILLETTE. District Attorney Backus Gives the Speci

later Trouble. Two well-contested harness races brought th fall meeting of the Parkway Driving Club to an end yesterday at the half-mile trotting track in Brooklyn. About 1,500 persons witnessed the sport. Among them was District Attorney Backus of Kings county, who is a member of the Park way club.

the club house balcony, and when the Publi Prosecutor spled Jimmie O'Neill and half a dozen other professional pencillers doing a brisk business over near the grand stand he went down and interpreted the Percy-Gray law for their benefit. Some of the layers were taking in the money, while their partners or assistants made memoranda of the wagers. This was the feature of the betting to which Mr. Backus objected. He said that the law permitted them to disntay the odds as much as they liked, and to put up their money when they liked, and to put up their money when they made their bets, but they mustn't keep any memorands or record of the trainsections on pain of prosecution before the Grand Jury. Some of the pencillers wanted to give the District Attorney an argument on his new interpretation of the law, citing the fact that the lockey citib had tested the right of the better to make a memorandum of his wager, and that this was the universal practice on the running tracks a little further down the road, but they were informed that failure to observe the District Attorney, ruling would result in this was the universal practice on the running tracks a little further down the road, but they were is formed that failure to observe the District Attorney's ruling would result in trouble, and during the rest of the afternoon O'Nelli and his conferers found it necessary to take a walk around the far corner of the grand stand immediately after each bet was made. The trotting horse men were inclined to think that it was not very sociable for a member of the club in his official capacity as District Attorney to rule against them in a matter which they said had been carried on unmolested under hitch legal advice at the running tracks all summer long, but they didn't record any more bets—not within sight of Mr. Backus.

Capt. Ed Pyle's Nebraska trotting stallion Rouble P, started favorite in the mixed race open to all trotters and pacers, but for two heats he made repeated losing breaks and brought up the rear, while E. T. Bedford's black trotter Gillette and A. Doncourt's gray pacing mare Highland Lassie had the contest to themselves. Gillette outfinished the mare by a head after making a break in the homestretch in the first heat, and after leaving his stride three or four times in the second round, he again made up the lost ground and landed in front by a good long neck at the wire. The judges thought he had made too many breaks, however, and they placed him fourth, giving the heat to the pacer. In this heat one of the other horses struck Robbie P, satiky wheel, knocking out a number of snokes and wrecking the bike. Mr. Bedford, the owner of Gillette, showed himself to be a good snortsman by offering the stranger from Nebraska another sulky, and when Robbie P, went off and went the event three heats and the race, he was the first man to congratulate (Capt. P) in on his victory, saying. "The best horse won." Gillette was not at his best vesteriar, looking somewhat Jaded and stale. Brooklade Stable, won the special race in straight heats, trotting his last mile in 2:104 without apparent difficulty. Charles G. Mose
